Notes for Johann Georg Meintzer:

Alsace and Lorraine are 2 different regions that yet share a common history and fate. They have been alternatively French or German, depending on whom won the war !

In Alsace they speak a German dialect : Alsatian, that exists till the Vth century. Although that old, it is slowing giving way to French, especially with the younger generations.

Now some dates : in 1638-39 Alsace becomes French yet the French king engages itself to respect the rights of the German princes that still have possessions here, including the Palatine house (county of La Petite Pierre, near where we're living).

1674 : after the Holland war, German again.

1679 : but not for long, here's France again.

On the eve of the French revolution in 1789, more than one quarter of the Alsacians are still subjects of foreign princes who yet had sworn suzerainty to the French king. These Alsacians were hence French citizens, but not completely !

1871 : back again to Germany after Napoléon III lost the war.

November 1918 : return to France after Germany lost this time the first world war.

1940 : attached to Germany.

1945 : they've been French since then thanks to Americans !

That created complications. For example someone that was born in 1906 as German went to the German school. On thier last school year they had to adjust to French. Actually most elderly Alsacians understand and speak better German than French.

He married Sophia Holtzscherer October 1869, daughter of Frederick Holtzscherer and Margaret Nicholas. She was born February 29, 1852 in Alsace, and died 1922 in Swanton, OH.

Notes for Henry George Meintzer:

Henry's father was 2 years old when his mother (Marguerite Meder) died in 1817 and 3 years when his father (Johann Philippe Adam, born April 9, 1775 in Volksberg, died 18/06/1818) died.

Henry fell in love with a young girl, Sophie Holtzscherer, also living in Berg, and became pregnant. Yet Henry's parents did not agree with a marriage because her family was too poor. So Henry decided to go to the USA, make a living there and then let her come too. Henry must have sailed to the USA by September 1868 and Sophie gave birth to a little girl in Berg on May 22, 1869, she named her Sophie Holtzscherer. They they married in October 1869, hence Sophia must have traveled to the USA between end of May and October 1869.

Henry came to America and settled in Cook Co. Illinois. He farmed there for 2 1/2 years and then moved to Fremont, OH where he worked 2 yrs in a sawmill and 9 years in an iron mill before locating in Fulton County. He bought 106 acres of land in Swancreek

Twp Fulton Co. with only about 20 acres cleared and the remainder in brush. He added farm buildings to the property and cleared much of the land. Also acquired an additional 40 acres of adjacent land and soon had about 100 acres under cultivation. He was a general farmer and specialized in livestock and dairying.
